LITTLE MISS FALLING SHOWER. Brooklyn's New Indian Baby. Falling Shower has just made her appearance in the most select circles of Brooklyn Indian society. Contrary to what her name would imply, she brought sunshine and smiles with her, and her father and mother, Little Cloud and Laughing Water, are the happlest and produest Indians in the whole length anad breadth of America. Falling Shower is the second Indian baby that has been born in the Borough of Brooklyn. The mother of the first was a squaw who was travelling some was a squaw who was travelling some years ago with Buffslo Bill's Wild West. Falling Shower is a bright-eyed, brown-skinned baby, weighing twelve pounds, and during the forty-eight hours that she has had in which to make herself known has convinced every one with whom she has come in contact that the American baby has never been born that could rival her in Her father's American name is William Nicholas. He has a cozy home at No. 241 Channeey street, Brooklyn, and is employed as an engineer at the Smith street telephone station. There is a little baby brother cailed Morning Glory to keep Falling Shower com-pany. He was born three years ago in Connecticut.

The father and mother belong to the famous tribe of Mic-Mac Indians, who have their hunting grounds on the Bay of Fundy.

Trying to Prevent a Strike.

A committee from the International Machinists' Union visited R. Hoe & Co.'s printing press factory, Sheriff and Grand streets, yesterday in an effort to acttle the differences between the union and the firm over the piecework system and prevent a strike. According to the union only men of exceptional strength can do the amount of work in a week necessary to earn a fair week's wages. The firm on the other hand alleges that the menemployed on piecework earn 20 per cent more than if they were paid by the week or day. The family fived in comfortable circumstances until hist May, when James was laid off. He tried hard to get work, but failing, enlisted as a private in Company M. Forty-seventh Regiment, now a atomed at Fort Adams, R. L. He has not been able to send any money home as he was compelled to use it to purchase clothing.

Mr. Dickinson, when seen yesterday, said that what he wanted was work and not charity. "Work I must have," he said. "I must keep a roof over the local of my wife, who is a cripple, and of fay little grandaughter. Surely there is some person in this large city who needs my services. While I am an old man I am still meating one and would earn every cent I received."

The selling of the Rodman at Twenty dollars has exceeded by a wide margin any previous experience we have ever had in bicycle retailing. We do not think that the history of att the bicycle business can show such another set of figures.

We mention this merely for what GOODALL PERKINS & CO. Gen. Agts. it proves by inference. The greatest bicycle bargain of the country ought to result in the greatest bicycle selling. We began with a colossal stock, but already see the end in sight. There is no prospect (we are glad to say), that bicycle conditions will ever again enforce such bicycle bargains, 250 West 125th St. The time is now, it ever.
